

A

KAREN BARAD
*Professor of Feminist Studies,
 Philosophy, and History of Consciousness, University of California, Santa Cruz*

U

Karen Barad earned her Ph.D. in theoretical particle physics. Her research topics include feminist theory, physics, twentieth-century continental philosophy, epistemology, ontology, philosophy of physics, cultural studies of science, and feminist science studies. She is the author of Meeting the Universe Halfway: Quantum Physics and the Entanglement of Matter and Meaning (2007) and numerous articles in the fields of physics, philosophy, science studies, poststructuralist theory, and feminist theory.

T

H

TINE DAMSHOLT
Associate Professor of Ethnology, Saxo-Institute, University of Copenhagen

Tine Damsholt's primary areas of research lie within the field of cultural theory; materialization, body, and subjectivity formation, and especially within political culture. Her Ph.D. thesis dealt with patriotic discourse in late 18th century Denmark. She is currently working on a comparative project on citizenship ceremonies in Western countries as material-discursive phenomena.

O

R

S

WANG FENGXIAN
Researcher, Institute of Sociology, Beijing Academy of Social Sciences

Wang Fengxian's research areas include marriage, family, and domestic violence, community service and women's non-governmental organizing in the People's Republic of China. She has published numerous articles in Chinese journals and several monographs. She has held positions as committee member of the Women's Health and Development Section of the Chinese Mental Health Association and as member of the Beijing Women's Theory Association.

MATZ HAMMARSTRÖM
Doctoral student in Philosophy of Religion, Centre for Theology and Religious Studies, Lund University

Matz Hammarström's doctoral thesis has the working title A Relationalist Approach to Religious Experience. The aim is to delineate a relationalist perspective and use this to contribute to the discussion concerning truth, reference, and the construction of reality, and an understanding of religious experience. Recent articles are "Den relationella människan" ("The relational human being") in Människan sedd: genom olika vetenskapliga prismor, 2011, and "On Getting the Referent of Religious Experience Right – Relationalism and Bohr's Concept of 'Phenomena'" in Svensk Teologisk Kvartalskrift, 2011/4.

LIS HØJGAARD

Associate Professor, Department of Political Science, University of Copenhagen

Lis Højgaard's main research areas are feminist theory, research methodology, and cultural studies of gender focusing on gender and power in organisations. She has published a number of books on gender and leadership, wage-gap, work-life balance, and knowledge production. She has contributed to Feministiske Tænkere (Feminist Thinkers), 2007, and has published articles on analytics of materiality in feminist theory and methodology. Latest she has co-authored the article "Theorizing the complexities of discursive and material subjectivity: Agential realism and poststructural analyses", in: Theory and Psychology 2011/3.

MALOU JUELSKJÆR

Associate Professor, Department of Education, University of Aarhus

Malou Juelskjær is occupied with empirical analysis and 'concept building' in relation to the constitution of subjectivity with emphasis on intra-actions of time, space, architecture, interior design, technologies, social categories, and leadership within professionalized educational settings. She published the article "(Im)possibilities of doing 'both/and': Transitions of category memberships, and the constitutive force of spatiality and temporality in the production of (im)possibilities" in Feminist Intersectionality Studies in Time and Space: Diverse Consciousnesses and Resistances, 2010.

CECILIA MILWERTZ

Senior researcher, Nordic Institute of Asian Studies (NIAS), University of Copenhagen

Cecilia Milwertz's current research is on non-governmental organizing in the People's Republic of China. She has written books on population policy in China and on women's organizing in Beijing. She is editor of the Gendering Asia Book Series and coordinator of both the Gendering Asia Network and the series of Sino-Nordic Women and Gender Studies Conferences.

RENÉ ROSFORT

Postdoctoral Fellow, Department of Systematic Theology, Faculty of Theology, University of Copenhagen

René Rosfort holds a PhD in the field of subjectivity and ethics. His research focuses primarily on the question of naturalism and on various approaches to emotions and the notion of personhood in psychopathology and philosophy. He has a book forthcoming (co-authored with Giovanni Stanghellini): Emotions and Personhood: Exploring Fragility - Making Sense of Vulnerability (planned publication November 2012).

NETE SCHWENNESEN

Steno Health Promotion Center, Patient Education Research Team, Gentofte, Denmark

Nete Schwennesen holds a PhD from the Center for Medical Science and Technology Studies, University of Copenhagen. Her work focuses on the social implications of health care technologies. She is particularly interested in the relationship between health care technologies and agency, the spatial dimensions of health care and the mobilisation of facts in evaluations of health care technologies. Her latest article "Representing and intervening: 'doing' good care in first trimester prenatal knowledge production and decision-making" was published in Sociology of Health and Illness (2012/34/2) and identifies professional practices of care in the context of first trimester prenatal testing.

DORTE MARIE
SØNDERGAARD

Dr.philos and professor of Social Psychology, DPU, University of Aarhus

Dorte Marie Søndergaard is director of the research program, Diversity and Learning, and of an interdisciplinary research project eXbus: Exploring Bullying in School. Her writings have focused on gender and deconstruction, feminist studies, gendered leadership and positionings in academia and in the private sector. She is currently working with extreme marginalization and bullying among children. Her methodological publications have concentrated on poststructuralist, cultural psychologist, agential realist, and new materialist theories and analytics.

EDITORS OF THIS VOLUME

HILDA RØMER
CHRISTENSEN

Head of the Coordination for Gender Studies, University of Copenhagen and Associated Professor, Department of Sociology

Hilda Rømer Christensen has published widely in the field of gender, welfare, health, religion, equality, comparative, and transnational cultural analysis, feminist theory, and methodology, in total over 70 published scientific articles, reviews, comments etc. She has written and co-edited 13 books, thematic journal volumes, reports etc. Currently, she is involved in a transnational research project focused on (Re)making middle Class Families, China-Denmark.

BETTINA HAUGE

Ph.D., researcher, Technical University of Denmark and Department of Sociology, University of Copenhagen

Bettina Hauge's current research is centered on the home, people's interaction with technologies and materiality, and how our senses interact with our environment. An article on the latter, based on empirical research on the significance of fresh air to people, is to be published in Journal of Material Culture during 2012. Her latest book (co-authored with Peter Gundelach and Esther Nørregaard-Nielsen, forthcoming May 2012) takes up the challenges of climate changes and what young people think and do in response to these environmental changes.