UNIVERSITY OF CAMBRIDGE INSTITUTE OF CRIMINOLOGY POST-GRADUATE COURSE IN CRIMINOLOGY

The University of Cambridge has established an annual Post-Graduate Course in Criminology, to be given by the Institute of Criminology. The fourth course will be held during the three terms of the academic year beginning October 1st, 1964, ending in July 1965.

A Diploma in Criminology will be awarded by the University to those who have diligently attended the course, and who, at its completion, pass a written examination in five papers.

The Programme of Teaching will consist of lectures, seminars and practical work, dealing with all the major aspects of criminology. Practical work, during vacations as well as term time, will be undertaken by the students, at penal and psychiatric institutions, probation and after-care centres, and other agencies concerned with the prevention of crime and the treatment of offenders. Individual work will be required at the seminars; and the International Library of Criminology of the Institute will be available to those who attend the course.

Admission to the course will be open to those who already hold a university degree in any subject, not necessarily in law. In very exceptional circumstances, candidates who do not hold an university degree may be considered for admission, if they have either made an important contribution to criminology by research or gained outstanding practical experience in administration. The number of admissions in any one year will be limited in order to maintain the highest possible standard. Those admitted to the course will be made members of the University, and will be expected to seek admission to a college.

Application Forms for Admission to the post-graduate course are available from The Secretary, Institute of Criminology, 7 West Road, Cambridge, England. The completed forms, together with evidence of necessary qualifications, should reach the Secretary as soon as possible, and not later than 1st July 1964, for the course beginning in October 1964.
