Journal of Law and Social Research (JLSR) is a peer reviewed annual journal. The objectives of the journal are to improve the quality of legal education, encourage research, and build conventions of academic discourse and academic publication in the country.

JLSR aims to publish original and innovative legal scholarship in the diverse fields of law. JLSR is also keen to publish interdisciplinary socio-legal research that examines the interface between law and political, economic, social and legal institutions.

The journal welcomes contribution from judges, lawyers, academics as well as law students. In addition, given its policy of encouraging interdisciplinary scholarship, it also welcomes input from specialists belonging to other disciplines. Contributors are welcome to address the issues from national, comparative and international perspectives.

Contributions may be in the form of articles, book reviews or case comments etc.

The views expressed in the JLSR are those of the authors and they are responsible for their views expressed in the JLSR.
