the 1990s, the number of people with a mental health problem has increased by 50% (Mental Health Foundation 1999). The prevalence of mental health problems has increased in all age groups, but the increase has been most marked in the young (Mental Health Foundation 1999).

There is a growing awareness of the need to address the mental health needs of young people (Mental Health Foundation 1999). The National Institute for Mental Health (NIMH) in the USA has estimated that 10% of the population under the age of 18 has a mental health problem (NIMH 1998). In the UK, the prevalence of mental health problems in young people is estimated to be 10% (Mental Health Foundation 1999).

The Mental Health Foundation (1999) has identified a number of factors which are thought to be associated with the development of mental health problems in young people. These include: genetic factors, environmental factors, and psychological factors. The Mental Health Foundation (1999) has also identified a number of factors which are thought to be associated with the severity of mental health problems in young people. These include: the duration of the problem, the type of problem, and the presence of other mental health problems.

The Mental Health Foundation (1999) has also identified a number of factors which are thought to be associated with the risk of young people with mental health problems becoming involved in the criminal justice system. These include: the severity of the problem, the presence of other mental health problems, and the presence of other risk factors. The Mental Health Foundation (1999) has also identified a number of factors which are thought to be associated with the risk of young people with mental health problems becoming involved in the criminal justice system.

Jan Willumsen: Det tyske overfald på chefen for Grænsegendarmeriet, oberst Svend Bartholin Paludan-Müller i embedsboligen i Gråsten den 26. maj 1944.

Olie på lærred. 1954. 61×81,7 cm.

Oberst Paludan-Müller var frygtløs. Det viste han i 1935, hvor han var ved at miste sit embede på grund af sin holdning til Abessinien-spørgsmålet (se René Rasmussens afhandling herom i dette bind), og det viste han under sin heltemodige kamp mod den tyske overmagt i 1944. Kunstneren Jan Willumsens tegneserieagtige maleri viser det øjeblik, hvor Paludan-Müllers hustru og datter ved sognepræst Conrad Hvidts mellemkomst blev bragt ud af det belejrede hus. Derefter fortsatte obersten sin ensomme kamp i endnu tre timer, indtil han omkom i det flammeomspændte hus. Billedet var tiltænkt Frederiksborgmuseet, der dog afslog at købe det kunstnerisk set fremragende billede, fordi det fra familiens side blev kritiseret som værende »historisk ukorrekt«. Lykkeligvis blev billedet erhvervet til Slesvigske Fodregiment i Haderslev. Det må håbes, at Willumsens værk, der i dag med rette anses for et af efterkrigstidens bedste historiemalerier, også fremover vil kunne bevares her i Sønderjylland, hvor det hører hjemme. Thorkild Kjærgaard
